The horses were out in Felton, but these equine beasts were made of steel and rubber, not blood and bone, as part of National Mustang Day. The event was held Sunday and showcased some of the best examples of American muscle. There were about 150 cars parked under the sun at Roaring Camp, which is surrounded by coast redwoods and the San Lorenzo River.

The celebration featured live music, raffles, food, train rides and sponsor's trophies for the best cars. During the best cowgirl contest Heather McCabe, 9, of Gilroy, won best cowgirl for the second year in a row.
